Art Unit: 1732

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 2 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Suzuki (5,643,612). Suzuki discloses or suggest the basic claimed process for the manufacture of an article comprising a relatively rigid support element of which a "show" face is at least partially covered by a supple covering (14) including (1) connecting or uniting the covering to a relatively rigid holding element (note supporting member 48) in order to maintain the covering in a predetermined shape, (2) placing the support element (12) and the covering connected or united to the holding element into a foaming mold, and since the supporting element has a hollow region defined by a peripheral rim, disposing a docking surface of the covering opposite the peripheral rim. Suzuki appears to be silent concerning the strength of the holding element to withstand foaming conditions without deforming, but providing such a characteristic would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art in order to permit the holding element to be used in subsequent molding operations.

In Suzuki, the covering is connected to or uniting with the covering only locally, at the periphery of the covering, as in claim 2, and the holding element has a predetermined shape, as in claim 4.

3. Claim 3 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

4. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Allan Kuhns whose telephone number is (571) 272-1202. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday to Thursday from 7:00 to 5:30.
